“ There is so much I could say but will try to keep it short. My Dad and Edgar were very close and did many things together. It seems that I was always there with them growing up. The two of them went fishing a lot and we were always having fish fry's on the weekends. We helped put up hay, had many hay ride parties, and we were always helping on butchering day.

I was probably 14 or 15 the first time he took me coon hunting. I remember the first coon we treed. Edgar asked if I wanted to shoot it. I did, it came down, and Edgar said "just like a professional". Mom and Dad often played cards with Edgar and Norma. One night Dad and I got our instruments out and played while Edgar and Norma waltzed in the dining room. A couple years later when Dad and I began playing dances at the VFW, it seems they never missed a weekend.

But the biggest impression Edgar made on me was at my Dad's funeral in 1990. Up to that point I always saw Edgar as a very strong man...tough as nails and never let anything bother him. But that day, at Dad's funeral, I watched him cry. I had never seen that side of him before. I sometimes wonder how many other people got to know that soft side of him. So please forgive me if I cry at his funeral.

In my best "Jasper German" as he described it.

“ My condolences to the family. Edgar and I used to go coon hunting a lot when I was younger. It was always amazing the people he knew. Sometimes the places we went we got turned around and some nights we lost the dog. Edgar would just lay his coat down and the dog would be there the next morning waiting for Edgar. Well Edgar I know your in heaven with your wife and you have a new body so you and your wife can enjoy the things once again that you did here in this world.
