May she rest in peace now with Elmer, Mike and Scott.

One of my special memories of Imogene was when I was in the fourth grade. I was in the hospital and she came in to visit me. Reading was my most favorite thing in the whole world and she brought me a book as a get well gift. I'll never forget how surprised I was for her to bring me something so cool. The book was called "Sue Barton, Visiting Nurse". I told her this story several months back. She didn't remember it but said she was happy that it made such an impact on me!
