“ The first time I met Jim was when I was 7 years old - but I wouldn't realize it until our first day of undergrad at Uol. I walked up to the front desk and he was standing beside me. I heard him say his name and noticed the tip of his finger was missing. I looked at him and asked, "Were you ever in Riley Children's Hospital?" He said, "I was." That was when it dawned on me that he and I shared a room at Riley. I remembered (from so many years ago) that my name was in his and he'd told me the story that his rabbit bit his finger. I was in traction and couldn't leave my bed. Jim would steal whatever toys I had and laugh about it because I couldn't get up. I couldn't believe we'd finally met so many years later and he was still up to the same old shenanigans.
