“ Miss Meny, that is what we called her at our veterinary clinic. Every one was excited when she came in with her big smile. She was a pet lover, a good friend to me and my staff, and above all she was a New England Pats fan like me. She always texted me about her trip, the games or pet questions. Last text we shared was on the 12th of July talking about her trip to Cornell. I am glad my last reply to her was “Have fun”. I am sure where ever she is, she is enjoying herself and even though we know that we will miss her very much. RIP.

“ In discussing what the pallbearers could wear this morning, I remembered when Dick and I went on our first cruise with Lynn and Mark and we were discussing shoes. Dick was never one to wear sandals and Lynn went on and on about he should wear them. So he gave in (everyone knows Lynn had to have her way). But he told her he was going to wear them with socks (which was not in style anymore). She swore she would never be seen in public with him if he wore them. I know we would never do that to her at this time but it was just a little tidbit I wanted to share.
