“ I remember as a small child visiting the farm in Celestine. Uncle Linus showed us the hogs in their pen. Being a city boy, I wanted to pet them, but he hollered to me 'don't get too close to them, they might eat you!'

I remember when he was growing popcorn on the farm. We would bring it home to enjoy. He even said he sold to it Orville Redenbacher. So many people must have enjoyed it.

We had good times though not often enough. I was so happy when your family bought Grandpa's farm. It is wonderful to be able to come there and visit. And the sweet corn was always the best.

When Aunt Helen passed, I was honored to speak the prayer at the service. After, Uncle Linus praised me and told me it gave him comfort. I don't know when I ever felt so proud of something I did.

And how nice it was to be invited to Thanksgiving dinner at his home the first year after my own parents were gone. It was great to spend it with Linus and the family.

My condolences and love for my dear cousins.
