"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails in the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength. I stand and watch her until at length she hangs like a speck of white cloud just where the sea and sky come to mingle with each other. Then someone says, "There, she is gone." "Gone where?" Gone from my side. That is all. She is just as large in mass and hull and spar as she was when she left my side and she is just as able to bear her load of living freight to her destined port. Her diminished size is in me, not her.. And just at the moment when someone says, "There, she is gone." There are other eyes watching her coming, and other voices near to take up the glad shout, "Here she comes.""
