“Mary, Carol, Cindy, Dean, Tom and Chuck, It was grand to see your Mother a few months ago here in Texas, God's country. Memories of yesteryear rushed in like a long lost friend. While she sat around our table sharing details about her opulent offspring, I was taken back to her two-story house on 9th St(?). Marty had cooked up some delicious chicken. Mary and Carol were delicately pulling the meat off with their fingers, while I dug in with my canine teeth. Dean was near I'm sure curly his blond hair with his index finger while sucking his thumb. Oops! Your Mom would be warning Mary, probably not to TP. Carol would throw her head back and laugh her unique laugh. Your Mom always made me feel so special. In remembrance of your irreplaceable Mother, I have included a poem in her honor. I can email a better copy, if you send me an email address. In Loving Memory of a Great Mother Today is rich and teeming with life.

Tomorrow holds promised eternity.

We live in the powerful present;

Yet in a twinkling of an eye may be set free. Lord, we don't comprehend, the full measure of your grace.

Destiny has snatched our loved one,

Who now beholds Your glorious face. Father, a pearl from heaven, has been freshly returned to You.

We ache at Love's emptiness; we mourn rapture's early debut.

Our finiteness pains us. We desperately cling to what we know.

Impart the bigger picture. Stretched, now help us grow. Response

“A priceless Mother, a faithful friend, a bold lion, a gentle lamb, has been invited amid the angelic host, to dine with The Great I Am. The Spirit and the Bride say, ‘Come, Drink from the water of life freely.

Behold I am coming quickly.

My reward is with me.” “Hand in hand, our loved one will stroll, down My streets of transparent gold.

A walk to Emmaus shall unfold,

As I share the greatest stories ever told! Together with a myriad of saints,

*She'll dance before Me on the sea of glass,
As we celebrate the victories,
Of eternity past. Keep your eyes on Me,
The Author and Finisher of Your Faith.
I'm bottling your precious tears in my hand, and adding to you a new measure of grace. I'm writing a beautiful new chapter,
'Behold, I Make All Things New!'
Be blessed as you enter into my sheltering rest.
With wings of Mercy, I am comforting you." In Loving Memory of a Mountaintop Woman whose Life Will Continue to Echo through the Canyons and Corridors amid Those Graced by her Peaceful Presence. Her children rise and call her blessed,
As Proverbs graciously does recall.
Many women do noble things,
But you excel them all! Love You, Therese Parsons*
