“ My condolences to the entire family. Maurice will be surely missed but we know he is in a "Better Place". I would like to share something that was given to me when my father died that brought me peace.:

In my Father's house are many mansions, I go to prepare a place for you. Those that have lost a loved one in death go through deep sorrow. The vacant place in the home leaves an aching void in the hearts of those who remain behind. Sometimes the bereaved would give anything to have their loved ones back again. But one glimpse of the blessings enjoyed by their dear one in heaven would change their minds. They would not want them to return to the suffering and pain of this earth. The following fable portrays how we might feel if we could see into heaven for an instant: A boy had a sister who was dying. He heard that if he could secure a leaf from the tree of life in heaven, she would be healed. So he approached the gate of glory and made his desire known to an angel. The celestial being suggested to the boy that even if his sister would be healed he could not guarantee she would never again be sick, suffer disappointment, or go through trials. Just then the angel deliberately opened the gate a little wider so the youngster could see inside. He could scarcely believe his eyes! Everything was wonderful and beautiful beyond description. After thinking for a moment, he exclaimed, "Forget the leaf! May I come with her?" When God in His perfect wisdom takes our loved ones home to be with Him they enter into glories that are beyond our fondest imagination. We sorrow at their departure and selfishly long to have them with us again, but this is because it is our loss. For those in the gloryland however, it is their gain. They are in "That Better Place", and we would not wish them back. I would not have you grieve for me today, nor weep beside my vacant chair, could you but know my daily portion here, You would not, could not wish me there. Heaven's delights far outweigh earth's difficulties. Mary, we will keep you and your family in our prayers. Wish I could be there to hug you. Love Always
