“ I once wrote to my cousin Phil that for me personally he was the heart of my extended Lovell family. He once wrote to me (and probably not only to me): "I know that we are spread across the country yet I know that our parents and grandparents did a wonderful job of keeping everyone together. Everybody has someone keeps track of some one. There was always a picture somewhere in our house of everybody that we were related to. Typically it was one picture that was the most current stayed on the refrigerator all the time. Even though it's been sporadic on visits . . . there was a responsibility that was taught to me, that formulated the meaning that I am, and it's simple. Family needs before personal. Community needs are just as important but everything has to be in balance. And then take care of your personal needs. I am so grateful that I am who am I and know that everyone is in a good place. When I visit with anyone , it's easy and it picks right up from the last visit."

Phil, I am so grateful you were who you were. I'm wishing you your good place. A universe full of color guards, flags waving and perfect choreography, marching bands in perfect tune, and big family reunions forever. I love you. Gigi, Lorie, David, Chris, and Brendan, Chris, I'm thinking of you with love and wish I could be with you on Friday. Susie
