“ When Todd and I were younger we had Monday night Wrestling parties at the house. Before wrestling would start we would play a video game Resident Evil (a zombie game). Dad would wait till we went to bed the night before and play through it so he knew where all the monsters were so the next night he could scare us. He was good at it. We had about 10 people there already and we would be going through a level and right before the monsters came out he screamed and all of us jumped. He left me with memories for a lifetime.

“ I don't remember a time when Steve was not smiling! Ella and Parker would always hollar for him when they seen him so he would wave to them. The little things he did made such an impact on everyone!
